All Things Considered is National Public Radio's daily news program. Its anchors/hosts are Robert Siegel, Michele Norris and Melissa Block, and the program offers a “mix of news, interviews, commentaries, reviews and offbeat features.”

Website for NPR
http://www.npr.org/
(search programs and schedules)
Website for All things considered
Google search
“all things considered”

Task:
Listen to a program on “All Things Considered” and relate that program to a historical topic within the course. The topics do not have to relate directly, you can look at historical themes, similar events, similar personalities, etc. You must support your conclusions with examples drawn from the specific program and other sources. The other sources can be textbooks, reference books, books, articles, web pages, etc.

Required:
- Will be approximately 1 page
- Will support your conclusions with research (web, textbook, books)
- All research will be documented in MLA format
- The essay must be typed on a word-processor, on white paper, font 11 pt Ariel or similar, 1 inch margins,
- Name/date/reading/class as the top header.

Answer the Following:

Compare and contrast a contemporary issue (story) on “All things Considered” with historical event, personality, etc. from this course.

1) Write a paragraph providing the program’s general information (do not just cut and paste from the web)
2) Write a paragraph on the historical event you are linking to the news event
3) Provide a comparative analysis of the two events
   a) Provide examples from both the “All Things Considered” program
   b) Provide examples from research on the historical event.